

Christine Simmonds-Moore

Ph.D. in Psychology, University of Leicester

Post-grad Diploma, Consciousness and Transpersonal Psychology, Liverpool

John Moores University

M.Phil., Cognitive Science, University of Dundee

B.A., Psychology, University of Wales at Swansea

I am a new faculty member at Atlantic University, where I will be developing and delivering courses as part of the new Masters in Parapsychology. In addition, I also work as a Research Fellow at The Rhine Research Center. I have recently moved to the USA from my native UK, where I worked for 10 years as a professor of psychology at Liverpool Hope University. I have regularly taught courses on the psychology of anomalous experiences and parapsychology as well as mainstream psychology. I am an active researcher, and have focused on further understanding individual differences and anomalous experiences, with a particular focus on personality types related to boundary thinness. My scientific and scholarly papers have appeared in Imagination, Cognition and Personality, the Journal of Parapsychology and the Journal of the Society for Psychical Research. I have two book chapters, and currently editing a volume on Exceptional Experiences and Health and co-writing a new textbook on Anomalistic Psychology.

Atlantic University

215 67th Street

Virginia Beach, VA 23451-8101

757.631.8101 or 800.428.1512

FAX 757.631.8096

registrar@atlanticuniv.edu

