Greetings!

I am so pleased to be a part of the relaunch of the Atlantic University Alumni Association. As I receive your updated, news, and articles, I am reminded of how amazing each one of you are. Not only are you successful graduates of Atlantic University, but you have continued to use your education to transform yourselves and others.

In this edition of the the Alumni Newsletter you will see articles from some incredibly and astute graduates, who are doing great work locally and globally. You will also have the opportunity to quietly say good bye to one alumna who has made her transition from the earth plane.

Finally, I would like to personally invite you the Spring 2015 Convocation in Virginia Beach. This is an opportunity to for those in the final stages of their Master's degree to share their projects with our community. Please consider attending Convocation in support of some very hard working students.

Convocation: April 24th, 2015, 9am-5pm. To read more and to RSVP, click here

Continue to be the change we want to see in the world. Be great, and do great things.

Sincerely,

Rachel Alvidrez, MS

Associate Vice President of Enrollment Management Services

In Memory of Debra Bailey, Class of 2010

The following was a message from Debbie's husband, Gary: "Debbie loved her studies at Atlantic University and the A.R.E. Debbie passed away on June 26, 2013, due to stage IV ovarian cancer. After her cremation on July 3, she was released into the New River at her favorite and requested spot."

Debbie received her Master of Arts in Transpersonal Studies with a specialization in Applied Spirituality in January of 2010.

New Endeavors

Lise St.Germain, Class of 2009, is embarking on a new adventure, LISE Workshops: Looking Into Self-Expression.

Lise will be exploring the reasons why living a life of full-expression is so important for every human being. Through her workshops, students will find effective ways to safely explore their own expression and begin to live a life which is full and joyous. New Research - Physical Karma

Joanne DiMaggio, M.A.

Joanne DiMaggio, MA, CHt, Class of 2010, is busy on a new research project on physical karma. Joanne, who is a past life therapist, is conducting regressions on individuals who have a chronic health condition in this life to see if its origin is in a previous lifetime. A soul-writing segment (writing in an altered state of consciousness) to expand on or clarify information follows the regression. Subjects are asked to fill out a follow-up questionnaire several weeks after their session to see if their condition has disappeared, improved, or remained the same after the regression.

Joanne is still looking for volunteers, so if you know of anyone with a chronic health condition living in the Charlottesville, VA area who suspects their condition may be tied to something that occurred in a previous life, please have them email joanne@joannedimaggio.com.

In addition to this project, Joanne recently joined the Gainesville Holistic Healing Center in northern Virginia where she conducts past life regressions and soul writing workshops on the second Saturday of the month. This is in addition to her work at the Unity Holistic Healing Center in Charlottesville, VA.

Dreams of a Graduate

Just four months after Chris McCleary, Class of 2013, obtained his Master of Arts in Transpersonal Studies with a specialization in Creativity, the Universe synchronistically handed him the top position of the National Dream Center, where he collects, collates, and analyzes multitudes of dreams in order to predict future events.

In 2014, he organized and led a revolutionary dream initiative called Project August, and this article is a small summary of what it was designed to do and what it ultimately achieved.
